

State Posting Requirements for Workers' Compensation

The State of California requires that all employers must post a notice of their Workers' Compensation carrier alongside their labor poster and other required postings.

This notice is usually supplied with the Workers' Compensation policy, is titled "Posting Notice," and has the following information:

- Workers' Compensation Insurance Carrier
- Policy Number
- Contact Phone Number
- Claims reporting number

Failure to display this notice in a prominent place can result in a misdemeanor offense and a penalty assessment order with fines of $1,500 per employee.

If you receive a penalty assessment, you have 15 days to contest the violation in writing. The instructions are on the back of the citation.
